

New warehouse complete for DK Jones

DK Jones Ltd has announced that a new warehouse extension on its northeast England site has now been completed.

The 5,000m<sup>2</sup> extension, which increases the total covered warehouse space to 15,000m<sup>2</sup>, allows both an increased range of stock and additional machining capacity.

In addition to an increase in the stock range of high quality standard and special items in alloy, low temperature and carbon steels, an increased range of stainless steel items will be stocked, including outlet fittings (Olets), high pressure forged fittings, nipples, solid bar and a range of seamless stainless steel pipe.

Several new machines are being installed for the company's in-house machining facilities. These include three new CNC machines and two machines specially designed for the profiling of Olets. This major new investment in stock and equipment will enable the rapid machining of special Olets and high pressure forged fittings from an increased stock of high quality semi finished forgings, bar and pipe, ensuring quick delivery for many standard and special items.

In addition to supplying original manufacturers' certificates with every item, positive material identification (PMI) is available on all relevant materials before despatch.
